Vegetarian

Vegetarian is the practice of abstaining from the consumption of meat (red meat, poultry, seafood, and the flesh of any other animals), and may also include abstention from products of animal processed for food.

Vegetarian may be adopted for various reasons.

Many people object to eat meat out of respect for sentient life. Such ethical motivations have been codified under various religious beliefs, as well as animal rights advocacy.

Other motivations for vegetarian are health-related, political, environmental, cultural, asthetic, economic, or personal preference.

Vegan is the practice of abstaining from the use of animal products, particularly in diet, and an associated philosophy that rejects the commodity status of animals. A follower of the diet or the philosophy is known as a vegan (ˈviːɡən/ˈveɪ-ɡən). Distinctions may be made between several categories of vegan. Dietary vegans (also known as strict vegetarians) refrain from consuming animal product, not only meat but also eggs, dairy products and other animal-derived substances.
